

Yusuhara a Home from Home: 18. Royal Celebrations: A Platinum Jubilee

Stephen Woodard

This year Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II became the first British monarch to celebrate a Platinum Jubilee. The milestone signifies 70 years of service. While officially this was achieved in February the celebrations occurred during a special extended national holiday in June perfect for the start of summer.

Up and down the country small local community and large national events were taking place. From traditional ceremonies, music concerts, festivals and street parties

there were a lot of things to join. It is estimated that over 10 million people from around the country joined a street party in their neighbourhood. A street party is, much like the name suggests, an event where streets are decorated and people eat food, drink and enjoy being around other people. A series of these celebrations might have made people realize the unity of nation, whose feeling seldom comes to mind.
